Food Insecurity, Unemployment and Youth Restiveness:
Horticultural Practice Remains the only Glaring Panacea – Prof. Manga

A Professor of Agronomy in the Faculty of Agriculture, Professor Abdu Ahmed Manga, believes that food insecurity, hunger/malnutrition as well as unemployment, which combine to instigate youth restiveness and threaten the nation's internal security, can be addressed through embracing/practicing horticulture as a profession.

The erudite scholar's position was contained in a lecture titled, "Horticulture as a Panacea for Food Insecurity and Unemployment", he delivered at the 13th Professorial Inaugural Lecture, which took place on Wednesday, 9th April, 2014 at the Musa Abdullahi Auditorium.

Professor Manga said he deliberately chose the above topic in order to create awareness on the importance of fruits and vegetables 'in our diets' and to advise on how horticulture as a business could be used to reduce the rising unemployment and youth restlessness that pose an internal security problem to the country.

He said for the lecture to be helpful to the youth and other individuals willing to make a career in horticulture by establishing a horticultural enterprise, it was necessary for him to take the audience through the various production practices of some of the horticultural crops for them to appreciate its significance in boosting an individual's income.

The scholar explained that prospective horticulturists wishing to embark on horticultural production would require simple farm implements and follow eleven steps in the management of crops. The steps include site selection, land clearing, land preparation, selection of suitable variety, seed sowing/cropping, fertilization, weed control and pest control. The rest are harvesting, processing and storage.

He also listed the different types/branches of horticultural industries for prospective horticulturists to select from, saying that "it is divided into branches according to products and their uses and these include; Pomology (fruits production), Olericulture (vegetable production), Floriculture (flowers and ornamental plants production) and landscape horticulture (garden design)."

The Professor of Agronomy further stated that horticultural enterprise ranges in size from micro village gardens to huge commercial enterprise with large holdings of green house and extensive orchards, adding that "whichever is chosen and practiced, is capable of reducing poverty, providing employment to our teeming youth and ensuring the sustenance of food security to the nation.”

In his address, the Chairman of the occasion and Vice Chancellor, Professor Abubakar Adamu Rasheed mni, MFR has expressed worry over what he said was the glaring disparity between the large number of Professors in the university and the negligible number of those who presented their professorial lecture.

He, however, hoped that the disparity would soon be bridged. “I want to see a situation where up to 20 Professors will be able to present their lectures before the end of the year”, he counseled.

Apart from a large number of students the lecture was attended by the DVCs, the Registrar, Deans and Directors. Professor M. S. Abdulkadir Chairman of Professorial Inaugural Lecture Committee delivered the welcome address, while Dr. Sanusi M. Gaya read the citation of the Guest Lecturer.

Upgrading of CDA to African Centre of Excellence:

BUK’11 Justify World Bank’s 8 million Dollar Grant

Vice Chancellor Professor Abubakar Adamu Rasheed, mni, MFR has assured the World Bank that the university would surely justify the 8 million Dollar granted it for the upgrading of its Centre for Dry Land Agriculture to African Centre of Excellence.

Professor Rasheed gave the assurance when he received a World Bank team led by Mr. Carl Lagen in his office on Monday 7th April, 2014.

He said BUK was used to stringent conditionality often imposed by most donor agencies, saying that of the World Bank would be regarded like that of Mac-Arthur Foundation, which says “if you justify, you get more, and if you disappoint you lose the facilities. We cannot afford to lose, surely CDA would definitely make a difference on Dry Land Agriculture in the West African Sub-region”, he assured.

The Vice Chancellor reassured the team that BUK management was fully committed to assisting CDA achieve its mandate, saying that was why some academics from West African countries were included in the advisory board of CDA.

Professor Rasheed took time to explain to the team efforts put in place by the University management to expand both infrastructure and academic programmes, as well as how well it expended funds donated to it by national and international donor agencies.

Earlier, Mr. Carl Lagen of the World Bank told the Vice Chancellor that the team was in the university to attend a meeting with the CDA officials, to look at the proposals as well as the implementation of plan of action towards upgrading the CDA to African Centre of Excellence in dry land agriculture.

He congratulated the Vice Chancellor over what he called tremendous infrastructural transformation currently going on in the university, saying that ‘if BUK justifies this facility, it will not only get more but also open the gate for other serious minded universities to benefit from the bank’s intervention programme’.

Members of the team being led by Mr. Carl of the World Bank include representatives from Kenya, Uganda, Association of African Universities, Ghana and National Universities Commission, (NUC).

The ceremony, which took place on Saturday 5th April, 2014 at the Convocation Arena saw hundreds of students besieged the venue to eat and drink from a ₦1 million goodwill gesture given to SUG by the Vice Chancellor, Professor Abubakar Adamu Rasheed, mni, MFR for the dinner.

In an emotional farewell message, the outgoing SUG President, Comrade Sani Ibrahim, said, “leadership is a challenging task that requires commitment and dedication, and a leader must be confident, vibrant, hard working, eloquent, intelligent and courageous.” He said under his leadership, the SUG addressed many challenges facing the students and attributed the success recorded to the support of the Vice Chancellor.

On the forthcoming SUG election, the outgoing President called on the students to be careful in electing their representatives. He thanked all the students for giving him the mandate to serve them.

On his part, the Dean, Student Affairs, Professor Isma’ila Zango, tasked students to be law abiding during the election and avoid anything that would tarnish their image. Earlier, the Deputy Dean, Old Campus, Dr. Shamsuddeen Umar, said “the Vice Chancellor, Professor Abubakar Adamu Rasheed, mni, MFR has placed much premium on the welfare of students, therefore, to reciprocate his gesture, the students should care more about University environment by sanitizing it.” He said students should not take part in littering the environment especially at this time when the University Management was taking bold steps to ensure proper environmental preservation throughout the Campuses.

Awards of excellence were given to the Vice Chancellor; the ASUU President, Dr. Nasir Fagge; the former Dean, Student Affairs, Professor Mohammed O. Bhadmus; the Deputy Vice Chancellor, Academics, Professor Muhammad Yahuza Bello; and the Deputy Dean, Old Campus,

Poor Technology Bane of Folklore Development in Nigeria

Poor technological innovation and inadequate compliance with the information technology have been identified as the major challenges towards the rising profile of folklore in Nigeria. Professor G. G. Darah, who was a key note speaker at the conference on Folktale in honour of Dr. Bukar Usman, OON titled, “Dynamism in the FOLKTALE in the Past, Present and Future” held at the Musa Abdullahi Auditorium on Thursday 3rd April, 2014 argued that most Nigerians relied solely on imported folklore and the Nigeria’s products have been discarded by Nigerians because of poor quality.

Professor Darah, who was represented by Peter E. Omoko of the Department of English, Delta State College of Physical Education, while explaining the historical background of folklore in Nigeria and the literary works done in many Nigerian languages by folklore scholars, advised the Nigerian Folklore Society to devise a strategy that would ensure the production of high quality folktale in order to create confidence among Nigerians.

On his part, the Vice Chancellor, Professor Abubakar Adamu Rasheed, mni, MFR said Folklore deserved to be given more attention and priority. He said because of its strategic importance the University has renamed the Centre for Study of Nigerian Languages into Centre for Research in Nigerian Languages and Folklore with three divisions for research and Postgraduate studies in folklore. He said the University has constructed office complex for the new Centre which will also house the secretariat of the Nigerian Folklore Society.

On why the conference was organized under Dr. Bukar Usman, the Vice Chancellor said he chaired the Folklore Society Revival Committee and as a retired Permanent Secretary of the Federal Government he participated actively in the collection, editing and publishing of many Nigerian folktales. He said when elected to chair the revival committee, he took the assignment seriously.

Also speaking, the former Vice Chancellor, Professor Dandatti Abdulkadir, who was also a former President of Nigerian Folklore Society, said Bayero University was a leading University in Nigeria in terms of teaching and research on folklore. He stated that scholars from various parts of the country came to participate in the conference, which was tagged 11th NFS Congress. Professor Abdulkadir commended the Vice Chancellor, Professor Abubakar Rasheed for supporting the activities of NFS morally and financially.

Similarly, in the evening of the same day, members of the Society conducted a meeting with the Vice Chancellor on the proposed leadership of the Society. During the meeting Professor G. G. Darah was proposed to be the Chairman, Board of Trustees with Dr. Bukar Usman as the President and Executive members were also proposed. They were unanimously endorsed by all the members.

In his address, the Vice Chancellor, Professor Abubakar Adamu Rasheed, mni, MFR said the composition of the 12-executive members was to reflect the diversity of Nigeria and the drafted constitution accommodated the complexity of a professional and academic association.

Professor Abubakar Rasheed further explained that the University's role was to intervene so that a team of people across the country would take the mantle of leadership of the society and afterwards it would continue to manage itself independently.

"The University makes available some offices to serve as a secretariat for NFS, but if some people decide to locate it somewhere they are free to do so. Ours is just a helpful intervention", the Vice Chancellor added.

The President, Dr. Bukar Usman told the participants that the drafted constitution contains the aims and objectives of the Society "Read it and make some observations. If there is anything you think can be amended, present it at the next congress meeting."
