

VOL XXXIII BULLETIN FRIDAY 9th MAY, 2014 No. 20

BUK Don Suggests Islamic Economic System as Panacea for Economic Injustice

A lecturer in the Institute of Continuing Education (ICE), Bayero University, Idris Salisu Rogo observes that in spite of the unprecedented prosperity brought about by the practice of conventional economics, inequality in income, economic instability, unemployment and poverty have not abated, rather they have continued to add to the miseries of the poor, particularly in the so-called developed nations.

He said while the market system had led to a long period of prosperity in the Western market-oriented economics, this unprecedented prosperity had not led to the elimination of poverty or fulfillment of everyone's needs in conformity with the Judeo-Christian value system even in the wealthiest countries.

Malam Rogo was speaking as a guest lecturer on the topic Islamic Economics: the Panacea to Macroeconomic Instability, at the 2012/2013 lecture series organized by the Muslim Agricultural Students Association of Nigeria, BUK chapter, to mark the end this year's academic session. The lecture took place on 29th April, 2014.

He said the above stated facts indicated that both efficiency and equity have remained elusive in spite of the rapid development and phenomenal rise in wealth, saying that the only glaring option left for the world to exploit in order to reap from the bounties available in the world financial system was for them to resort to the Islamic system of economic management.

Malam Rogo maintained that Islamic Economics recognized the role of the market in the efficient allocation of resources, but did not find competition to be sufficient to safeguard social interest, adding that it tried to promote human brotherhood, socioeconomic justice and the well-being of all through the promotion of moral values, market mechanism, family values, interest of society and good governance.

The guest lecturer concluded by saying that what was needed was a more integrated and holistic approach to all 'our problems', keeping in view the moral, social, cultural, spiritual, political and economic needs and aspirations of mankind. He said the shift of emphasis from machine to mind, from money to man, from means to ends, represents a qualitative shift in global human situation.

World Press Freedom Day: Nigerian Constitution Vague on Freedom of Press – Dr. Tonnie Iredia

The Nigerian Constitution has no clear provisions safeguarding the freedom of the press and the journalists are not allowed to optimize their full potentials because of various anti-press laws and possible threat of sedition against them by the government, former Director General of NTA, Dr. Tonnie Iredia, has conceded.

Dr. Iredia, who said this at the commemoration of the World Press Freedom Day organized by the Mass Communication Department on Saturday 3rd May, 2014 held at the Musa Abdullahi Auditorium, explained that while a section in the U.S.A. constitution said nothing shall be done to abridge press freedom, section 22 of Nigeria's constitution gives the functions of the media. Section 39 (1) deals with freedom of speech not press freedom while section 39 (2) protects media owners but practitioners are not covered.

Dr. Iredia, who was the keynote speaker, expressed dismay that despite the passage of Freedom of Information Bill into law, access to public information remained the major challenge as a result of bureaucracy. He said “each government ministry ought to have a desk officer in charge of providing such information to the public, but many organizations do not have such desk officers and the few ones are not properly trained”.

The nature of the Nigerian environment, according to him, is constrained by low literacy level, high degree of cynicism, anti-media posture, police brutality, ownership control and inadequate resources.

He called on the Nigerian Union of Journalists (NUJ) to seek to be firm and stronger in order to protect the interest of journalists in the country and advised the media to propagate the dissonance theory of selectivity through reversing the trend on attacks on the messengers because media in Nigeria is always accused of informing the people about issues that they should know.

In his address, the Vice Chancellor, Professor Abubakar Adamu Rasheed, mni, MFR who was represented by the Deputy Vice Chancellor, Administration, Professor Sadiq Isah Radda, said the University was particularly happy with Mass Communication Department because it has justified the confidence of the management. He commended the department for bringing journalism giants to the university.

In his capacity as Professor Sadiq Radda, he promised to deliver a lecture on the duties of journalists in Nigeria in the nearest future.

Earlier in his welcome remarks, the Head of Mass Communication Department, Balarabe Maikaba, PhD said the department was among the leading centres of learning journalism in Africa, training competent and quality graduates that are making tremendous impact in media industries.

“I am happy to announce to you that in its continuous transformation of physical facilities and academic programmes, the University Management is set to upgrade the department into Faculty of Mass Communication and Film Studies.”

Some personalities that spoke at the occasion are as follows:

Professor Dandatti Abdulkadir, former V.C., B.U.K: Mass Communication of B.U.K is the best in Nigeria. The department is now blessed with academic scholars of high repute.

Mal. Gausu Ahmed, Senior lecturer, Mass Comm Dept: The media in Nigeria is operating under an oppressive society engulfed by corruption, illiteracy and poverty. The freedom of the press cannot be exercised in such a situation until these issues are addressed holistically.

Timaus Mathias: Journalists must tell the truth no matter what happens.

Alh. Ahmed Aminu, former G.M, of C.T.V now ARTV: It is sad that people engage in journalism practices without knowing the ethics and rudiments of the profession.

Adamu Aliyu Kiyawa: People nowadays do not imbibe the habit of reading culture. Journalists must read very wide in order to interpret past and contemporary issues.

Alh. Ahmed Sajo, Director of Press, Adamawa State Government House: Press freedom is not only enjoyed by journalists but the entire people. Unfortunately Nigeria is gripped by unbridled corruption which negates such freedom.

Alh. Tukur Mamu, Publisher, Desert Herald Newspaper: Media especially in the north needs to be sanitized. Individuals and private organizations in the North should invest in the media industry.

Professor Umaru Pate, Convener of the Conference: This is just the beginning because more of such presentations are in the offing. We will continue to appreciate those who contribute immensely to the progress of the journalism profession.

The Managing Director, ARTV, Hajiya Sa'a Ibrahim, represented the Kano State Governor, Engineer (Dr) Rabi'u Musa Kwankwaso, and the highlight of the occasion was a musical show by Aminu Ala.

BUK Academic Staff Excels at International Confab.

A senior lecturer in the Department of Business Administration and Entrepreneurship, Dr. Balarabe A. Jakada has bagged an Award of Academic Excellence following the selection of the paper he presented at confab in Malaysia.

The international conference took place at Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia between 22nd and 24th April, 2014.

Dr. Balarabe and Dr. Gambo who co-authored the paper titled: "Halal Beef Value Chain and Market Potential in Nigeria" bagged the award of excellence in Islamic Marketing.

The conference was organized in collaboration with Qatar University and University of Sains Malaysia and erudite scholars from across Asia, Africa and Middle East were in attendance.

SUG Holds Maiden Public Lecture on Drug Abuse, STD

Barely two weeks after its inauguration, the newly elected leadership of the Student Union Government on Saturday last week conducted its first public lecture on Drug Abuse and Sexually Transmitted Diseases (STD) in conjunction with Lameen Humanitarian Foundation, at Theatre 1 Old Campus.

In her presentation, Madam M. Grace from the National Drug Law Enforcement Agency (NDLEA), said drug abuse has psychological, social and health consequences which if care is not taken would totally dismantle person's life and due to its social implication one person's conduct can ruin his entire family.

She explained that few years back Kano State was rated as the highest in terms of drug abuse in Nigeria, but as a result of holistic measures taken by the Governor, Rabi'u Musa Kwankwaso, the rating has dropped significantly.

Speaking on the Effect of Drug Abuse in Islam, Dr. Usman Sani Abbas said Islam forbids all forms of intoxication. He said “drug abuse causes early death, damages the kidneys and heart, and distorts learning ability, adding that there is a need for constant family pressure and advice to a person who is engaged in drug abuse.

Dr. Abubakar Ibrahim, who spoke on sexually transmitted disease explained that the virus HIV in particulars can be transmitted through sexual encounter, blood transmission and during child birth from mother to child as well as through the usage of unsterilized sharp object.

He advised the students to go for a test and use new razor blades for shaving and resist immoral temptations.

Reviewing the paper presentations, the Dean, Student Affairs, who was represented by Dr. Shamsuddeen Umar, said drug abuse is a social menace that causes morphological and psychological trauma on human being while sexually transmitted disease causes some deadly viruses such as gonorrhea, AIDS and hepatitis.

In his brief remark, the SUG President, Comrade Liman Usman Abdullahi, thanked all those who attended the lecture and appreciated the contributions of other executive members of the union.

The S.U.G. distributed a magazine called the Pacesetter free of charge to all participants.

GUIDELINES:

Farming Within the University Residential Area

This is to remind members of the University community that the management policy, which proscribed farming within the residential areas, is still in force. A statement signed by the Director Security, Col. A. A. Mohammed (rtd), said now that the rainy season has just began, staff members who wish to plant crops MUST NOT plant stem growing ones. Any person who violates this policy would have his crops destroyed and might face disciplinary action, the statement added.

In addition, those planting around the borehole area up to the river bank along the fence (New Campus) should give at least 2 meters before and after the fence and should not plant stem growing crops inside the fence. A team of security officials will embark on house to house visit to ensure compliance with this policy. Defaulters would be arraigned before the Staff Disciplinary Committee for appropriate sanction.
