National Assembly Urges Varsities to Emulate BUK's Center For Qur'anic Studies

The Chairman Education Committee of the House of Representatives, Honorable Aminu Sulaiman Goro, has said that the creation of Centre for Qur'anic Studies in Bayero University will greatly help to solve social problems in the country, urging other universities to bring similar innovations for the containment of insurgency and other related challenges.

Alhaji Aminu Goro, who disclosed this on Friday 23rd January, 2015 at the Council Chamber, when he led other committee members to Bayero University to inspect TETFUND projects, said the National Assembly will heartily assist the university to innovate similar programmes that have a direct bearing on the lives of people in the country.

He commended the Management and entire staff of the University for creating what he perceived to be a great weapon in solving the problems the government is fighting to solve today, saying the Centre will curtail the menace of unemployment and other social vices.

The chairman told the Vice Chancellor, Professor Abubakar Adamu Rasheed, that they were aware of the laudable performances of Bayero University, as such the House wished to encourage the management and staff of the university in doing even better.

He said, "We are part of the struggle; we joined ASUU in the agreement to fund projects through TETFUND, if there is anything the country has achieved is the establishment of TETFUND because without it today we could have been in trouble. We are in the process of reviewing the law that established TETFUND that's why we have to go round universities to inspect projects handled under the programme".

The Vice Chancellor, Professor Abubakar Adamu Rasheed mini, MFR, commended the visiting members of the education committee, saying that apart from the laudable projects executed, Bayero University was very much conscious of the national character, being the only university in Nigeria having a composition of indigenes of six states in its management and representation of all the local governments of Nigeria in students' admission, with the exception of only two local governments.

Professor Rasheed said Bayero University has 14 faculties, and Faculty of Pharmaceutical Sciences was taking-off this year, many new Centers, Colleges and Departments had been created and that the university was progressing rapidly in research, with many staff members pursuing PhDs and Masters Degrees within and outside the country.

He, however, said that in the last three years the university collected less than 20 percent each of its capital and recurrent grants. He said that TETFUND and NEEDS programmes remained the major sources of funding, adding that Bayero University was the only university in Nigeria that accessed all its TETFUND project allocations, an indication of its commitment and judicious use of the funds.

The Vice Chancellor said "We respond to the needs of the country, we have today eleven research centers from the two we inherited, we are the only university that responded to the needs of almajirai and the local Ulama by establishing the Center for Qur'anic Studies, which will go a long way to curtail activities of thugs and other vices, and with the support of government and philanthropists more of these centers will be established.

“The problem that prompted the establishment of the center is real because there are more people attending Islamic schools whose age range from 4 to 16 years than those attending western education schools in Kano, teachers in those schools are not salary earners, neither has the government any provision to engage them, as such we would at the Center hope to give them formal training to be co-opted in the system so that they can be employable,” he added.

Professor Rasheed also said the university's Center for Dryland Agriculture remained a model in the country, as such it would complement the efforts of government at federal, state and local government levels to harness wealth creation in agriculture, apart from giving impetus for the growth of individuals.

RAPE: BUK Expels Two Students

Bayero University has expelled two students of the Department of Business Administration and Entrepreneurship and Department of Political Science, Daniel M. Bako (SMS/12/BUS/00049) and Julius Oshakpembe (SMS/13/POL/00574) respectively.

A letter signed by the Director, Examinations, Admissions and Records (DEAR), Hajiya Fatima Binta Mohammed, explained that the expulsion followed the Vice Chancellor's approval of the recommendations of Students' Disciplinary Committee, which found the students wanting in a case of criminal conspiracy, intimidation and rape against a female student.

Bulletin enquiries confirmed that the victim reported the suspects to University security staff, who investigated and reported to higher authorities, resulting in the appropriate disciplinary action.

The letter dated 27th January, 2015, which was addressed to their respective Heads of Departments and copied to the Publications and Documentation Division, directed each of the Head of Department to inform the students and their level coordinators about the expulsion, which is with immediate effect.

The statement further directed that the expulsion notice be reflected in the remarks column of the students' second semester results.
